| 1. The author of this series has made it up his special object to confine himself very strictly, even in the most minute details which he does records, to historic truth.   | __________ |
| 2. The narratives are not tales founded upon history, but history in itself, without any embellishment or any deviations from the strict truth, so far as it can now be never discovered by an attentive examination of the annals written at the time when the events themselves occurred.                            | __________ |
| 3. In writing the narratives, the author has endeavored to avail for himself of the best sources of information which this country might affords; and though, of course, there must be in these volumes, as in all historical accounts, more or less of imperfection and error, there is no intentional embellishment. | __________ |
| 4. Nothing is stated, not even at the most minute and apparently imaginary details, without what was deemed at good historical authority.  | __________ |
| 5. The readers, therefore, may rely upon the record as the truth as, and nothing but the truth, so far as an honest purpose and as a careful examination have been effectual in ascertaining it.   | __________ |

Task 59. Complete the crossword.

I could not help laughing at the ease with which he explained his process of .... “When I hear you give your reasons,” I remarked, “the thing always appears to me to be so ridiculously simple.” Do you note the peculiar construction of the ... — “This account of you we have from all quarters received.” A Frenchman or Russian could not have written that.

A slow and heavy step, which had been heard upon the stairs and in the passage, paused immediately outside the door. Then there was a loud and ... tap. “Come in!” said Holmes.

“But your client —”

“Never mind him. I may want your help, and so may he. Here he comes. Sit down in that armchair, Doctor, and give us your best ...”

From the lower part of the ... he appeared to be a man of strong character, with a thick, hanging lip, and a long, straight chin suggestive of resolution pushed to the length of obstinacy.

“... take a seat,” said Holmes.

“You will excuse this mask,” continued our strange visitor. “The ... person who employs me wishes his agent to be unknown to you, and I may confess at once that the title by which I have just called myself is not exactly my own.”

“The circumstances are of great delicacy, and every ... has to be taken to quench what might grow to be an immense scandal and seriously compromise one of the reigning families of Europe.”

Down 9

“If your ... would condescend to state your case,” he remarked, “I should be better able to advise you.”

Across 5

The man sprang from his chair and paced up and down the room in uncontrollable agitation. Then, with a gesture of desperation, he tore the mask from his face and hurled it upon the ground. “You are right,” he cried; “I am the King. Why should I attempt to conceal it?”

“Then, as to money?”

“You have ... blanche.”

Down 10

“Absolutely?”

“I tell you that I would give one of the provinces of my kingdom to have that photograph.”
